Meteorologist's View

Freezing level will be low in the morning but rises in the afternoon, it will certainly feel quite cold on the hills especially in the moderate westerly winds.

Forecast for Wednesday 02 Dec 2020

Weather: A frontal band of rain will push east across the Mournes during the early hours of Wednesday, it will be quite weak and should have cleared east by sunrise. Then it will be a bright start with some early sunshine. Showers will develop and these will be wintery above 500m with slight accumulations on the tops likely.

Maximum wind: Southwesterly 15-20mph with gusts 30-35mph.

Chance of cloud free mountain/hill tops above 700m: Once the rain has cleared east 80% chance of cloud free tops, in the afternoon this will reduce 60% as tops are shrouded in heavier snow showers.

Visibility: Visibility will be moderate in the early morning rain but soon become very good as that clears. In wintery showers visibility may fall very quickly and become very poor for a time.

Temperature: Valleys: Plus 6 falling to plus 1 Celsius later in the day.
At 700m: Plus 4 falling to minus 1 Celsius
Freezing level: 1000m falling to 600m
